Top Gun the film was based on a real flying school called United States Navy Fighter Weapons School or TOPGUN, formerly based at Naval Air Station Miramar in San Diego. This school was established in 1936, five years after the outbreak of World War II, to train naval pilots to fight the Japanese air force. Unlike most air force schools, which used standard tactics for those years, fighter pilots had to operate under the cover of their aircraft, since bombers and transport aircraft were vulnerable to fighter attacks.
