Combatants are given rewards throughout the battle based on the number of kills achieved. Each match has a winner and a loser who receives a ring of bonus points. From level 1-6, whichever player has earned more kills wins. From level 6-10, whichever player has earned more kills wins. From level 10-20, whichever player has earned more kills wins. Finally, at level 20, neither player wins, but gets to choose a new player to fight with as an alternative. You can play up to 4 battles concurrently and all players start with 100 points. There are 2 core sets of cards available: "Normal" and "Bullseye". Normal cards have 3 level 1-6 players as well as the level 20 option, while the "Bullseye" cards include 2 level 1-6 players and the level 10 option. About The Game Matraquinha PAIR is an in-depth, tactical, and strategic dueling game for 2-4 players. Be warned: this is a game that focuses more on planning, strategy and timing than on skill. However, once you get used to the game, there will be plenty of fun! Normal or Bullseye cards are randomly drawn. You get 3 normal or 2 bullseye cards for your first 3 turns. Each player takes turns playing the cards selected for their color. At the end of the player's 3rd turn, a winner is determined by the number of kills of each of the players (however, players may decide to declare their winner before the 3rd turn is over). Then, the player with the more kills plays their next 3 cards of their color. If a player manages to keep their kills at the end of their 3rd turn without killing any other player, they skip the 4th round (which is the last card a player gets to play), and the players continue to fight with no cards again, until there is only 1 player left. Matraquinha PAIR is so popular in Europe that it's even sold in France, Switzerland, and Germany. You can play on iPad, iPhone, and iPod Touch. Well-designed, easy to learn and pretty easy to play. If you have any questions about Matraquinha PAIR, please click on the "Contact" tab on the web site for more details. Please note that pricing is subject to change without notice and the current MonsterCare is a management-simulation game, in which the player oversees a shelter for neglected and homeless monsters. Starting from a single room in the attic and a one lost monster, the player develops their shelter into an expansive operation, housing multiple monsters with different traits, needs and abilities. As monsters arrive to the shelter, the player is tasked with maintaining their health, happiness and general well-being, and training them in different disciplines. In order for the monsters to "graduate", the player needs to fill adoption contracts, which have specific requirements regarding the monster's qualities: breed, attributes, and training. After completing adoption contracts, the player is rewarded with money and experience points, which can be spent on expanding and improving the shelter: customizing rooms, unlocking new capabilities, automating tasks etc.

Con: - No classes, but you can only get so far without them. - No classes, but you can only get so far without them. - Hardly any effects aside from, now I can change the names of my monsters in-game. Get to know the core functionality of MonsterCare. Plot Set in the not too distant future, humans have decided to make the creatures they keep in their homes pets. However, not every animal is suited to this idea. One of those abandoned pets is a wyvern, a winged creature that grows over a hundred times the size of an average dog, and their body is more suited for a dinosaur than a house pet. A white-haired woman living in Japan manages to raise the creature and gives it the name Yosuke. At some point the wyvern is sent to an adoption center, where a human couple with a young daughter see the wyvern and want to adopt it. The wyvern is a little hesitant because it sees the young girl as a prey and tries to eat her. The father wants to acquire this monster as it is a rare one, but first he wants to train it in order to make sure it will not attack the little girl. Initially the wyvern did not feel like it was suited for the training, but after a long discussion with the wyvern and the father, the wyvern agrees. However, not much later, the wyvern develops a hatred against the father and his daughter, and assaults the family in their home.

Shalnor Legends contains the following soundtracks: The Ruins of Akel Bay - Newly Recorded About a year ago, our brothers in the band recorded this album. It was first released on Xbox Live Arcade, but we finally got a version for the Steam release. This version includes the few things we have fixed since the XBLA release as well as some polishing, smoothing and reusing audio assets. Available on Xbox One and Steam Dead Man's Sword (Beta) - Remastered This is the second version (beta) of the game released a few years ago on Xbox One (that contained a lot of problems). The version has been remastered to be as close to the current version we are using as possible (in audio and rendering quality). And since it's a beta, we have added things such as new puzzles, some balancing updates and some fixes. The beta version also comes with the Enemy Encounter 1.0 and the UI improvements we have made so far. Steam page Whitescythe - A Symphony of War Back in the fall, our was the second soundtrack album in the Sacred Lands series with a score by our favorite man in the Panoplist Audio Team, WhiteScythe Available on Steam The Brotherhood - Codex 2 This new track from the Brotherhood ("Development Tracks") contains five new, reworked chapters from the Codex. If you're willing to spend a bit of real-world cash and have a PC at your disposal, you can buy a new copy here and get tons of new content. Available on Steam Pixelism by Sectof The first soundtrack in the Sacred Lands series with a dedicated Panoplist Audio Team. It features a gorgeous soundtrack, created by our awesome friend From The Niche Available on BandCamp and eventually on other platforms as well
