The Navy-led Unified Undersea Warfare Center (UUWC) on Friday released a video touting the department's research aboard the aircraft carrier USS George Washington (CVN 73) during a recent test deployment to the Persian Gulf. "Our world is becoming more complex," said Rear Adm. Frank Morneau, commander of UUWC. "Capabilities to operate in these increasingly complex domains, to be resilient and ultimately operate in the future, are the cornerstone to ensure U.S. Navy and U.S. Marine Corps dominance at sea." During the test, a special operations team aboard the destroyer USS Zumwalt (DDG 1000) used a cutting-edge system to identify sources of electronic, electromagnetic and acoustic emissions. The team identified the sources of the unique emissions, and then captured the emissions within the video. "With only 60 days of testing conducted, our teams have already operated successfully in a highly contested environment," Morneau said. "This equipment was developed specifically for carrier-based operations, and will be fielded to our carriers as we expand capabilities to meet future threats.” The video was released just prior to the start of the annual Fleet Week festivities in Newport, Rhode Island. × Fear of missing out? When I was young and unplowed I was going to take a break from posting for a while, but I couldn't. It's not that I haven't been doing anything interesting; it's simply that I'm way too excited to get back to work. New musical projects are in the works, and they're looking better and better. This all falls in line with my muses' advice to "if you can't do something you love, do something you're really good at." I always like the idea of the latter, though both muses also had something to say about identity: Nessa: You should really talk to your friends about what identity means to you. People are really afraid of "what it means to be me." Erin: Yeah, I think people are afraid of what they feel. Why? Because they're afraid of what they're afraid of. If you can think about where you're afraid of, you can reach that and get to the bottom of it. But that doesn't stop me from wanting to write about the whole identity thing from a fictional standpoint. Considering the burgeoning identity movement in my life these days, I think it's only natural that I'd have to write a story that speaks to that. I'm just as excited about the second novel in the Mirror, Mirror series; it's a third of the way finished. The initial spark came from a NY times article, though I had tons of ideas in my head before I even clicked on the article. I also think of the novel as being an E K Adams-style fiction novel in that it deals with a lot of complex issues. I don't want to say too much until I'm really close to the finish line, but I think the main issues of the novel are how to connect love with duty, and how not to lose the capacity for love. Having lived with two persons who were complete opposites in their roles as parents, I think that these two things are probably the most prevalent issues in our society. Erin and Nessa: We're just going

What's new in Nebula Within Soundtrack:

/ Self-Released (2012) There are vast amounts of musical works being released throughout the music industry here in 2012. One could easily write the history of the whole year in the release and entirety of these works. The mastermind behind the music scene in 2012 is “Seoul, South Korea” musical action known as “Rhythmic Noise ”. I have chosen the top 7 releases from the blank frame, and for the first 1.5 of my video playlist, I have top these releases in my opinion based on “quality”, “creativity” and “technique”. Whilst yes I am looking at what everyone else is looking at, this does not mean I am praising or finding fault of music that is not in my opinion one of the best musical creations. Though it does mean a few things are missing from the list today but expect to see them on days three and four of the list for the remainder of the year. When I say “seoul South Korea” I am referring to a creative group of artists banding together and sharing their talents through collaborative works throughout the years since 2007. Much like the duck-tape app “Kadokawa Artists”, this is just another piece of music for my wall of noise that features some of the most talented musicians and producers to ever grace the industry. Today I am playing your Choice Song or a song that you liked from Rhythmic Noise for the blank frame. 1.001. Cowboy From Village - Vietnamese Dream Because of his music I will always be reminded of Ryukyu Islands off the coast of Japan in the song “Vietnamese Dream”. The version of music I selected is one I can hear in my head, “Mr Vanilla” album “Heeey What’s happening”(Released in 2007) is being used. Cowboy From Village remains in the top most prominent position because of the fact that I find it to be a high quality piece of music with a great sound for a cover. The group seem to have built up quite a cult following over the years behind their name (International Folk Blues Association). Though I do listen to all the tracks they do release their cover works have always been high quality and must have been chosen quite carefully and not just because of the artist known as “Cowboy”, so that is why they’re getting my vote today. Everytime I play this song my two lovey

Red Sight is a 2d side-scrolling action game which focuses on survival. You're a black and white guy who has been infested with a snake and taken out of his normally peaceful home. Now you have to escape the place and bring it back. Use whatever is at your disposal to help you on your journey, ranging from guns to restraints. How you respond to your situation is the key to victory. Each enemy you encounter has their own unique reaction to your actions. Will you pick up their gun to threaten them? Will you pick up their gun and aim it at them? Will you pick up their gun and shoot them in their head? If you have no guns or you don't think you're up to the task, maybe the snake is just what you need to keep yourself safe. You've been infected with a virulent snake bite and are now a victim of the curse. Run around with your arms out, frightening all of the slithery little bastards into doing nothing, all while holding your breath. You'll have to fight an ever increasing hoard to stay alive long enough to get out. Red Sight includes features including:- Zombie

Survival: Lose your way and become infected by a poisonous snake bite. You'll need to find a way to overcome the weakness and become stronger. You'll need to find a way to overcome the weakness and become stronger. Beware of the Rising Sun: More enemies are unlocked as you progress in the game, each one with its own unique attack. When you play the game you unlock better tools for fighting. Run, Run, Run, Run, Run: With each death, your view of the game world will become distorted and more dangerous. You can use actions such as running to your advantage in order to keep things safe for you to come back to. Snake! Snake! Snake!: A marker system allows you to see your current status and what you've learned in the game. It will advise you if you should wait until you're better equipped or be aggressive right now. Phobia: When you are in the red, you'll be playing with a 3rd person camera. This will help you to remain aware of your environment and the danger ahead. Escapes: You will be able to escape the traps or even the enemies. MISCELLANEOUS: Movement System:
