When I run it, I run a loop that does the following: private void doStep() { while(true) { //Get's all the available options IEnumerable availableCommands = commandService.GetCommands(new RfqState()); //This process loops around the available commands //its current command is stored in the ICommand.When it finishes it steps in the next possible step. while(Command?.CanStepInNext) { Command nextCommand = commandService.GetCommandByIndex(Command.NextCommandIndex); //This gets the command of the current step and steps the command into the next step. Command commandToStepIn = nextCommand == null? null : commandService.ResolveCommand(nextCommand.Command, this); commandService.StepCommandIn(commandToStepIn); } break; } } My question is when I resolve the command, does the ResolveCommands method receive the commands in the order that I call them, or do they receive in alphabetical order of the command name? A: I'm not sure I understand your question, but the answer e79caf774b
