Famously is a card game where you play the role of Famously Albert Einstein, Bill Gates or Napoleon Bonaparte. Your goal is to be in the top ranked position on the leaderboard by matching the cards in the correct symbol. The goal is to get as many points as possible and to do so you have to choose the correct action and by that use the cards. Famously has lots of different actions and allows you to interact with other people during the game. You can play the game with other people as you can turn off the "Can't Talk" rule for yourself or even switch to playing for one of the other people. This means that if all you play is Albert Einstein you need to do it in the correct symbol. You can do it for the good in your own symbol or for the bad in the other people's. And if you match a card in the correct symbol, your score will increase! You can also save your game to your device and continue playing. There is also a "Dining" mode in Famously where you can enjoy dinner and eventually have a feast in a series of events. The order of the events is random but you can influence it to help yourself or you can chose an evil character to try to take over the world for yourself. There are also special people in the game who play the role of President Wilson and Margaret Thatcher. They are the ones with the arrows in the first picture. There are more people than just the people mentioned above and they are all special in their own right. In the following pictures we can see who they are. A LOT of people from "regular" Famously have a special place in the game. If you played any you should have some idea about what they are! Spoiler! Shoutouts: We really appreciate the time you are spending reading this article. And we appreciate the time you took to have a look at and test the game. Thank you for that! Thanks for the comments and the feedback. We really did our best to make the game really fun and we really appreciate the effort you have put into finding bad things about the game. As always we hope you like the game! Famously has been successfully funded on Kickstarter last summer and we were really looking forward to having fun with you! Developer: Nimble Bit, Inc Price: $4.99 Platform: iTunes Description: Set in an alternate version of the 80s and 90s, Punch Club follows a tale of a good person with a lot of heart. While this seems like a lame way to start a game review, the game starts with you investigating the wrongdoings of an anonymous person who punched someone in the face with a heavy object and never confessed. The game takes you through various levels and you are free to move around using various methods such as running, jumping, and dashing. Punch Club has a good amount of levels and you are free to play them all without any worry of being blocked. Another interesting part of the game is that you can play the game using only one of your two hands as you don't get a kick-ass controller to use. Features: • 4 different boxing modes • Lots of distinct backgrounds with each level • TONS of characters to unlock • Power up system that you can spend your points on. • Many difficulty settings for each level I'm sorry for the extremely text-heavy review, but I didn't feel like making a video version of this game.
