1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a television system, and more particularly, to a high-definition television (HDTV) system and related signal processing method.

2. Description of the Prior Art

The current television system used by the global broadcasting industry is the digital-television broadcasting standard Moving

Picture Experts Group-1

(MPEG-1) or MPEG-2, which is a digital encoding standard for television and includes a Moving Picture Experts Group-2 (MPEG-2) for high-definition television (HDTV). The MPEG-2 standard defines a time-axis scalable coding system, which compresses moving pictures into specified bit streams and the information of the bit streams is indicated on a time axis and an object and meaning are specified on a time axis. In the MPEG-2 standard, a video sequence of a 16:9 aspect ratio and a video sequence of a 4:3 aspect ratio are mixedly displayed on a single screen, and the video sequence of the 16:9 aspect ratio is coded into a video sequence of the 4:3 aspect ratio. Conventional technology, please refer to FIG. 1, which is a schematic diagram of a prior art television system 1. The television system 1 includes an external input terminal 11, a display controller 12, a converter 13 and a television 14. A decoder 140 is connected to the external input terminal 11 and converts the received input signals into signals compatible with the converter 13. The converter 13 includes a digital-to-analog converter 130 to convert the input signals into analog signals compatible with the converter 13, and a scanning converter 131 to perform the scanning conversion. The television 14 receives the signals from the converter 13. The conventional television system 1 functions as follows. The system 1 receives the digital-television (DTV) broadcasting signals through the external input terminal 11. The DTV signals are a video stream and a bit stream. The input signals are converted into analog signals by the digital-to-analog converter 130, and the scanning converter 131 scans the signals and outputs a video frame. The converted analog signals are output to the television 14 for display. The digital television broadcast signals may be received by an NTSC or PAL television system. The converter 13 in the prior art television system 1 is designed to compress and decompress a certain video signal set (VPS). However, when an HDTV program to be received is displayed, the video signal set (VPS) of the converter 13 is incompatible with his comments on the Supreme Court-appointed SIT probe into the alleged excesses in the purchase of over a dozen helicopters for the Coast Guard of the coastal state by the ruling BJP earlier this year. In a Twitter post, Mr Parrikar said his tweets were "exaggerated" and that they were meant to suggest that the government was buying the helicopters using government money. "Regret my tweets on defence forces choppers purchase. They were exaggerated. They were meant to suggest the government was buying the choppers using government money," Mr Parrikar said in a Twitter post. The chief minister said the government had provided all information to the Supreme Court-appointed Special Investigation Team (SIT) which is probing the matter. "The helicopter purchase was underway even before I came to the Centre. We furnished all information and details of the purchase to the SIT. I only regret my tweets. There are no allegations of any wrongdoing," Mr Parrikar said. Earlier this month, the apex court had asked the state government to explain whether the deal was conducted with the knowledge of the state government. The government, after the SC order, had informed it that it was unaware of the amount of money being spent on the deal.
