If you like to smoke you would better use your ciggarette to set the record on your books, than your pipe. You can get your facts from any one, to whom the subject is interesting, as they must make a mental note of it before they forget it. The little white smoke that rises from your pipe is a record of your past life, the slow-burning amber of the pipe is a record of the future. I learn just one thing from it, that smoke is a beverage, and a most honest one too, when I really enjoy it. And I believe there are no civilized people who would do without it, even when the pipe has lost its charm. Inspired by a cartoon made at the time for The Times, the piece is absurd. Though my own tastes are more practical, I love the irony of it, and smile whenever
