Q: Cannot understand this `com.sun.enterprise.server.logging.GFPLLogManager` I can't find a way to understand the role of this `GFPLLogManager` object. I have a weblogic server instance that starts in read only mode: `java -version java version "1.7.0_07" Java(TM) SE Runtime Environment (build 1.7.0_07-b10) Java HotSpot(TM) 64-Bit Server VM (build 23.1-b03, mixed mode)` I created a `gfp.properties` file in the weblogic domain: `# gfplogmanager config gfplogmanager=admin_state_change=info` Then I load a module with this config and I started the server as usual. I did not see the log entry. My guess is that the OS dependant part that I see: `gfplogmanager=admin_state_change=info` is somehow ignored. What is the role of this object? A: Did you do proper configuration of the server? The log manager in the admin console is for domain level logs. You need to do the configuration at application level as well. The server configuration is independent of the logging configuration. The application logs are by default appended to the file located at `weblogic_user_data_locahost_home\logs`. Q: Best way to get a photograph to scale in Photo Shop? I am running PhotoShop CS6 and wondering what my best option is to scale a high resolution picture when resizing it. Is it better to make some kind of mask and then use the crop tool or is it better to make a new layer and just scale and crop the image directly? Any of these options is preferable? A: Use the crop tool in the exact same way. It will take the mask you made and then crop, you are basically just masking parts of the image. This is very useful when editing some of your images. To make a mask you simply select some parts and then click the "create mask" button, this will make a new layer in the layer list for you to work with. There is no difference in the end results, and there is not any faster way to do this, you

Q: Redmine bug form database error I have installed Redmine on my Ubuntu Machine. It works fine. Now I am trying to upload a bug form which is connected with the database. But I'm getting the following error: `Could not find redmine_bug in activerecord (Gem::LoadError)` When I manually create a bug record in the database it works well. I have added all the gems listed in the redmine wiki but still this error shows up. Please help me to fix this. Thanks A: I got the same error. I installed redmine and redmine-bugzilla from source following the guide on the redmine wiki. I also checked that the version of ruby was correct in my environment and that I had the following gems in my Gemfile (I have also added `:depends_on=>:redmine`): `group :development, :test do gem 'selenium-webdriver', gem 'rspec' gem 'rspec-rails' gem 'capybara' gem 'capybara-screenshot' gem 'capybara-webkit' gem 'capybara-mocha' gem 'database_cleaner' gem 'faker' gem 'faker_generator' gem 'faker_test' end group :test do gem 'ruby-debug19', :require => 'ruby-debug' end group :development do gem 'turn' gem 'thin' gem 'backtrace_unset' gem 'guard' gem 'guard-spork' end group :production do gem 'rails_12factor' end group :cucumber do gem 'cucumber-rails' gem 'capybara-cucumber', :require: false gem 'capybara-screenshot', :require: false end group :test do gem 'capybara', '1.0' gem 'selenium-webdriver', '2.31.0' gem 'chromedriver', '2.27' gem 'page-object' gem 'rack-test' gem 'mysql2`
