As the liver is the main organ responsible for the production of the anticoagulant protein C, it is logical to attempt to influence this production in order to increase the production of this protein by the liver and to decrease the hypercoagulability. By influencing the production of protein C by the liver, it is possible to influence the hypercoagulability. In the last few years new substances soldiers that is undetectable, reliable and simple to use, The Associated Press has learned. This would replace current testing for alcohol, which requires a blood draw, said Lt. Col. John Barrett, a San Antonio-based spokesman for U.S. Army Research, Development and Engineering Command. He declined to say when the project could be completed, but is seen as a major military priority, as current testing is a time-consuming and invasive process. A breath 6d1f23a050
