I have an ODI-4002A (11.1.2.2.0) and ODI-4002B (12.1.0.1) Oracle BPM Suite installed on a web application (Spring 3.2, Apache 2.4.6, Tomcat 6.0.36). Most of the functionality is functional - i.e. if I navigate to I am successfully redirected to the login prompt to authenticate. However, the authentication actually fails. And I cannot catch the actual exception on the client side, so I cannot investigate what is really happening behind the scenes. If I try to login to the sso console, it redirects to: But, again, the login attempt fails. The authentication is apparently failing in the static component from Oracle Enterprise SOA Suite 12c (ODI-4002B) for the Oracle BPM Suite (ODI-4002A).

Q: Part of the page is not rendered correctly in IE A really strange issue has appeared in my project - we are using OpenERP and IE8. On the main page of the project, there is a menu which is showing up without any CSS, because the page has loaded incorrectly. Please see the following images: Main page, which has the menu, rendered correctly in IE8 Menu page, rendered incorrectly in IE8. I have tried to open the HTML files in different editors, and this "unrendering" happens in a weird place. The top part of the site is not rendered correctly, and I can not find which line of code causes that. We are using IE8, OpenERP 6.0, Symfony 1.4, Zend Framework 1.10. On the top left corner of the site I have got a "?" symbol, which is missing if I visit the page in a browser, but it exists in the HTML file. It looks as follows: Does anyone know what causes that and how to fix it? I would appreciate any help. Thanks in advance. A: I've found that the issue is caused by Zend Framework scripts. I had to change my configuration of routes to a custom one, containing only the path: '/'. The original one contains '/home/index/index', which causes the error. Onion is a delicious root vegetable that has been used to flavor sauces and soups for many years. Recently onions have begun to be sold dried, in bulk quantities, for use in soups and sauces. These dried onions need a thorough cleaning prior to use, and the present invention provides a novel bulk onion washer for that purpose. The present bulk onion washer is unique in that it allows dried onions to be stored in containers which can be easily stacked and unloaded by hand or by automatic conveyor equipment. Previously bulk containers for drying onions had all been constructed by hand, thus making such containers impractical for large scale production. The present invention provides a bulk container having a bottom wall, vertical side walls and top wall 6d1f23a050
